

Abertay University Archives: Archives Deposit Portal Privacy notice

Abertay University follows the Information Commissioner's guidelines to comply with data protection legislation, including the Data Protection Acts 1998 and 2018, and the General Data Protection Regulations in respect of the personal information we hold about you. We are committed to safeguarding your privacy and maintaining the security of your personal information. The purpose of this Privacy Notice is to explain to you what personal information we collect and how we may use it.

What information are we collecting and why?

Abertay University Archives collects the information about you in this archive deposit portal in order to be able to contact you in future about material you wish to submit to the University Archive collections, and also to maintain a record of the ownership history in relation to the items you are submitting.

Giving us your name and address provides us with a record of who has uploaded material to us. It enables us to acknowledge your submission to us, and to contact you about your deposit later on if there are issues that we need to discuss with you e.g. relating to copyright, or personal data.

How will this information be used and shared?

Aside from contacting you about your submission to the Archives, part of the information you provide may be used by us to calculate anonymised statistics in relation to submissions.

The Archives do not share your personal information with any other organisation or University business area.

How long we will keep your information for

We will keep this information about you for as long as the items are held in the Archive collections. If the items are accepted then your data will be held permanently.

Your Rights

You've got legal rights about the way the University handles and uses your data, which include the right to ask for a copy of it, and to ask us to stop doing something with your data. You can see a copy of your rights in full in the University's Individual Rights Policy

If you wish to exercise any of your rights, or have any questions, comments or requests regarding your personal information, or you wish to make changes to it, or you are unhappy with how we handle your personal information you can contact the University's Data Protection Officer ("DPO"):

You will not have to pay a fee to exercise any of your rights. However, the University may charge a reasonable fee if your request for access is clearly unfounded or excessive. Alternatively, we may refuse to comply with the request in such circumstances.

You are also entitled to contact the Information Commissioner's Office (the "ICO") (www.ico.org.uk) about any concerns about the way the University has handled your personal data. The University would, however, appreciate the chance to deal with your concerns before you approach the ICO so please contact us in the first instance.
